

Indiana State University ~ International Studies Program

International Studies Minor – 25 credit hours

Effective as of Fall 2013

The IS Minor consists of 25 credit hours, including 16 from specified core courses and 9 credit hours from approved 300 or 400 level courses with a regional or thematic focus. Students design their programs of study in consultation with the International Studies Academic Advisor. Students must also participate in an approved Study Abroad Program.¹ During their last year in the program, students take a one-credit capstone course (International Studies 490) in which they complete a self-reflective project that draws together several aspects of their experiences in the course work and their Study Abroad Program.

Foreign Language(s) (6 credit hours)

Six credit hours in foreign language(s) beyond the ISU Foundational Studies requirement for foreign language.

World History (3 credit hours)

HIST 102 – Studies in World Civilization since 1500

International Social Processes (6 credit hours)

Students must take two courses from the following four. Only one may be in political science.

Economics:	ECON 100 – Basic Economics
Environmental:	ENVI 130 – World Cultures and Environments
Political Science:	PSCI 271 – Introduction to International Relations
	PSCI 280 – Introduction to Comparative Politics

Thematic or Regional Focus (9 credit hours)

Three courses at the 300 or 400 level focused on a particular region or theme. These must be approved by the IS Academic Advisor.

Study Abroad Program

The Study Abroad Program must meet the following criteria:

- Minimum of six credit hours (or equivalent) on site in an ISU–approved program.
- Minimum of four weeks residence in the country where the study is pursued.

Note: Study abroad courses may be in any discipline, but if appropriate they can also be used for the foreign language or regional/thematic focus requirements of the IS Minor.

Capstone Course (1 credit hour)

International Studies: IS-490 - Senior Project in International Studies

¹ For certain students completing a Study Abroad Program may present extraordinary challenges. In such cases writing a substantial research paper can substitute for the Study Abroad requirement. Consult the Curricular Policy Statement – Research Paper for details.
