Welcome to Indiana State!

Welcome to Indiana State University! You have made an excellent choice in choosing the Sycamore Blue and the Wabash Valley as your home.

Why Create a Welcome Guide?

We know you have already received valuable information during the orientation. Yet, we find that for many, it is the day to day bits of information that typically are not written down that make the biggest difference. It is our hope that the 'settling in' process can be made a bit easier and a little more enjoyable with the content provided in this guide.

Office of Student Success

The vision of the Office of Student Success is to enhance student achievement of their educational goals. We achieve this vision through (1) focusing energy on key issues affecting student success, (2) using data to inform decision making, and (3) engaging faculty and staff as participants in the process of improving student retention and achievement.

Multicultural Services and Programs

The Office of Multicultural Services and Programs was created to advocate across various vectors to grow Indiana State University into a model of multicultural excellence for all who learn, live, and work on campus. Multicultural Services and Programs strives to build a climate of inclusion and community and aim to enhance intercultural competency through workshops, services, resources, programs, and influencing ISU policies and practices. We work actively with and for all Indiana State University students.

What does Multicultural really mean?

Multiculturalism involves an understanding, empathy, and appreciation of others language, religion, sexuality, age, mental or physical abilities, experiences, etc. To put simply, let's just say multiculturalism is the appreciation of other people. This includes things about the person that are not apparent—aspects of the person that you cannot see. When meeting someone, must take into consideration that every person comes with different abilities, values, norms, goals, and experiences. We are not all alike and we should appreciate those differences. We may share the same aspects of a particular culture (i.e. language, religion, gender, political affiliation, national origin); however, no one has shared the same experiences or influences throughout their lives.

The Office of Multicultural Services and Programs will focus on strategies that will increase the retention and graduation rates of our students. Our goals are simple:

- Ally with and support students in marginalized communities
- Assist in the retention and graduation of multicultural students by fostering a sense of community through intellectual, social, and cultural exchange
- Provide and promote safe spaces for challenging dialogue about students' experiences and concerns
- Provide services and programs that support multicultural students in realizing their academic, professional, and personal potential

Historical Look at Students

Indiana State University has a long and rich history regarding diversity and equal access. The Office of Multicultural Services and Programs has gathered professionally researched essays that share this history. All can be accessed at the Office of Diversity website via the links below:

Resource Centers

The Office of Multicultural Services and Programs is committed to providing educational and social programming to the ISU campus. We have a special interest in helping students, faculty, and staff feel embraced and valued. To assist in accomplishing the goals set for Multicultural Services and Programs, several resource centers were created. Each center was designed to be a welcoming environment that respects diversity in all its forms.

The La Casita Student Resource Center is a space for those interested in learning more about the Hispanic and Latin cultures. International Student Resource Center supports and promotes the success and personal growth of international students through intercultural programming and advocacy.

The Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender, Queer/Questioning (LGBTQ) Student Resource Center provides resources, services, and programs for students who may have questions pertaining to the lives of LGBTQ students and allies. The center is designed to be a safe, inclusive place regardless of sexual orientation, gender identity, and/or gender expression.

Embracing Your New ISU Community

You have arrived. Indiana State University is your new home. This guide is just a glimpse of what awaits you on the campus of ISU. It is up to you to search the numerous happenings listed on the events calendar each day. Hundreds of events occur each month. The problem will be trying to decide what to attend, what to see, and what to explore.

Affinity Groups

Let's begin with opportunities to connect on campus. Indiana State University has several active and productive affinity groups. An affinity group is a group of people who share interests, issues, and commonalities with the central focus on supporting each other. The Office of Diversity provides financial support and assistance to the current affinity groups. New affinity groups can be formed by employee request by contacting the Office of Diversity. The criterion is as follows:

Groups designated by descent

(e.g., African American or Black; Latinos/as or Hispanic; Asian American; Native American; and multicultural, etc.)

Groups designated by other identities

(e.g., international; lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, or questioning (LGBTQ); veterans; first generation; and people living with disabilities, etc.)

Key benefits of affinity groups include but are not limited to relationship building in diverse communities, solutions for real issues critical to the University's goals and objectives, and opportunities to help group members feel connected and enjoy being part of the Indiana State University community.

Current Faculty/Staff Affinity Groups

Our current affinity groups meet regularly and have established relationships and networks that are enjoyable and productive. If you are interested in participating in the affinity groups above, please email the contacts below:

- Mary Howard Hamilton – African American Faculty Affinity Group
- Karen Liu - Asian and Pacific Islanders Faculty and Staff Caucus
- Azizi Arrington-Bey - Black Faculty and Staff Caucus
- Theresa Ortega - Hispanic Organization for Leadership and Advocacy (HOLA)

Settling in Your New Home

The flurry of moving into a new job and neighborhood can make finding those little nuggets of comfort taxing. Groceries, hair care, healthcare, volunteering, recreation, local delights and just plain connecting with others in the community can take time to ferret out and explore. To ease this transition, we have assembled a list of information that we hope you will find useful.
