Members of ISU's Females in Technology (FiT) Organization are devoted to developing ourselves into qualified leaders within our chosen technical fields while encouraging others to explore the opportunities that these fields have to offer females.

What We Do:

Indiana State University's Females in Technology organization is committed to supporting the enhancement of women in technology and engineering through activities in:

Professional Development

- Workshops
- Conferences
- Guest Speakers
- Trips/ Tours in Industry

Networking

- Women in the College of Technology
- ISU College of Technology Alumni
- Industry Professionals

Outreach Programs & Community Service

- Girl Scouts Day
- F.I.T. for the Future Conference
- K-12 School Visits
- "Canstruction" Hunger Drive
- Habitat-for-Humanity "Women Build"

Successes:

Females in Technology hosts a F.I.T. for the Future Conference every fall. The conference is designed to serve as a fun-filled, hands-on day of career exploration for female high school students.

Workshops are held in the areas of:

- Automation
- Automotive
- Aviation
- Computer Eng. Tech
- Construction Management
- Electronics Technology
- Information Technology
- Human Resource Development
- Mechanical Eng. Tech
- Packaging Technology
- Technology & Eng. Education

We have received positive feedback thus far:

"I met new girls that have the same things in common with me."

"More schools should come to this! It ROCKS!!"

"I had a lot of fun. Now I have other ideas about what I want to be."

"It opened my eyes to more areas in technology!!"

"This event was tons of fun."

"Some [students] are realizing that there are so many more areas in engineering than they knew!"

Needs:

- Funding:
 - Scholarships
 - Outreach Activities
- Partnerships
 - Industry/Corporate
 - Institutions/Organizations
- Increased Female Enrollment & Participation
