

FULL TIME LECTURER - 2022

The Department of Psychology at Indiana State University invites applications for a full-time lecturer to begin Fall 2022. The position is currently approved for one-year, but there is a possibility of renewal if the budget allows. The position will primarily support our APA accredited clinical psychology doctoral (Psy.D.) program, but will include some undergraduate teaching. Candidates with interest and experience in clinical training/supervision are especially encouraged to apply. This non-tenure-track position carries a 15-credit or equivalent teaching load, but reductions for clinical supervision or other duties (e.g., undergraduate advising) are possible. Individuals who may have had nontraditional career paths, who have taken time off for family reasons, or who have achieved excellence in careers outside of academia are also encouraged to apply.

More information about the department and its programs can be found at www.indstate.edu/psychology. Applicants must apply online at <https://jobs.indstate.edu/postings/36846> and submit a cover letter, including a statement of their teaching experience/interest, vita, graduate transcripts, and references who will provide letters of recommendation.

Please note that the references you provide on your application will receive a notification request for a recommendation letter immediately upon submission of the application.

For full consideration, applications should be received by February 1, 2022, though they will continue to be accepted until the position is filled.

Inquiries about this position may be directed to the chairperson of the search committee, Dr. Kevin Bolinskey at Kevin.Bolinskey@indstate.edu.
