Greetings from the University Honors Program! The Spring semester is now a memory and the senior Honors class of 2015 class has left the building to pursue their dreams and construct a powerful legacy as Indiana State alumni. This senior cohort represented the largest graduation of Honors students yet – they were some of our finest campus leaders, classmates, and friends. Honors was very well-represented among university award winners; very special congratulations to the Hines medalists Kaitlyn Belter, Ashley Haack, Becca Muick and Evan Rush, and Rankin Memorial Distinguished Senior awardees, Whitney Neukam, Katie Runge, Blaine Timonera and Jonathan Wachala – an Honors student sweep in both categories! Congratulations also to commencement speakers Dan Burkett and Jonathan Wachala on their selection and their powerful messages to the graduating class. Honors students also recognized with university awards were John Moore award recipient Carly McDonald and Landini Outstanding Juniors Rodney Lockman and Jade Schitter. In addition, we congratulate the numerous college, department and discipline award recipients. To our recent graduates – we will certainly miss you, but we look forward to hearing of your great success and leadership beyond the bounds of campus. Having just concluded New Student Orientation and Summer Honors (and a huge thank you to Tara Thomson for her leadership of that program), we are very excited to meet the incoming class of students.

We were thrilled to celebrate the achievement of faculty member and ISU alum, Dr. Pamela Gresham, chosen by the students as the Honors Faculty of the Year recipient in her first year teaching at Indiana State. Dr. Gresham’s seminar offerings, To Play or Not to Play: Theoretical Aspects of Games and Competition and Inspiration and Innovation: Creativity as an Agent of Change, were wildly popular and influential classes. She developed a devoted following of enthusiastic students as a result of the energy and dynamism of her classroom presence and also the inventiveness of her teaching methods. She has been a tremendous contributor to Honors and the University.

Inside this newsletter, you will read of the activities of our students during the semester now past – much of it in their own voices. The students of the University Honors Program are members of all academic colleges, and so we owe a debt to the many campus and community offices with which Honors collaborates every day, as well as to its generous supporters. The excellence of our students is only possible because of the coordinated dedication and effort of this entire University community. We extend best wishes to everyone for a relaxing end of summer and a great Fall semester.

Congratulations to Dr. Pamela Gresham for winning the 2015 Honors Faculty of the Year Award! The University Honors Program annually collects nominations from current Honors students to recognize excellent Honors Faculty who have taught an Honors course during the current academic year. Honors students’ comments about Dr. Gresham, who teaches GH 101 and 301 courses, include:

“Dr. Gresham gives students the ability to use creativity in her classes. She is extremely passionate about teaching and teaching well. She does not allow only one way for things to be done, but she opens multiple avenues for exploring different topics and using creativity to stimulate learning. I believe that she is an extremely deserving faculty member of this year's Honors Faculty of the Year award.”

“She makes the class really fun, but then when I reflect on what happened in class, I realize that the class gets me thinking really critically and I learn a lot without even realizing it. She also keeps things very realistic while we are in class, and holds us to a high standard while remaining a very personable teacher that is easy to approach.”

“She challenges us to put ourselves outside of our comfort zones to address social issues. She uses interesting information to inspire us to work hard and do our best. Above all, Dr. Gresham believes in us, making me feel more confident in my schooling altogether.”

The University Honors Program advises the Indiana State University chapters of three national honor societies: Alpha Lambda Delta, Golden Key International Honour Society, and the National Society of Collegiate Scholars.

During the 2014-2015 academic year, 51 first-year students were inducted into Alpha Lambda Delta, 27 students were inducted into Golden Key International Honour Society, and 58 students were inducted into the National Society of Collegiate Scholars.
The University Honors Program annually awards several scholarships to support the academic goals of current Honors students. Congratulations to Dawnetta Henzman, the recipient of the Anne Bauer Jackson, M.D. Honors Book Scholarship; Courtney Marsh, the recipient of the Rebecca A. Johnson Honors Program Award for Honors Nursing students; and Makenna Graham and Kyle Varble, the recipients of the Richard J. Brett Memorial Scholarship for Study Abroad.

A number of Honors students were also recognized by the university for their outstanding academic achievements. Rodney Lockman and Jade Schitter were awarded the Richard G. Landini Outstanding Junior award; Whitney Neukam, Katherine Runge, Blaine Timonera, and Jonathan Wachala were awarded the Alan C. Rankin Memorial Distinguished Senior award; and Katelyn Belter, Ashley Haack, Becca Muick, and Evan Rush were awarded the Hines Memorial Medal for graduating with the highest grade point averages. Additionally, Daniel Burkett and Jonathan Wachala were selected as the May 2015 Student Commencement Speaker.

In addition to these program and university awards, graduating senior Olivia Bohnhoff was awarded a very competitive and prestigious Fulbright Teaching Assistantship in Mexico. Olivia is a Language Studies major and International Studies minor, and studied abroad in both Chile (pictured below in 2013) and Colombia (2015) while completing her degree.
HONORS COUNCIL UPDATES

The Honors Council started off the Spring Semester with some new faces. Our new and returning members worked hard on a number of events throughout the semester. We started off by holding a series of professional development events and a scholarship session to help our Honors students navigate the new scholarship website. Congratulations to everyone who received scholarships! The Council also started a new event series called “Lecture and a Movie.” For these events, the Council invites a professor from the Honors faculty to show a movie and discuss certain aspects or themes of the film. This semester, Dr. Gresham showed August Rush and discussed giftedness with our students, and Dr. Brennan showed In the Bedroom, a movie adapted from the short story, “Killings,” by Andre Dubus.

The end of the semester meant the end of the 2014-2015 Honors Council. It was wonderful to work with such a great group of Honors Program leaders. Congratulations to our Honors Council members who graduated this semester! The Council also looks forward to the start of the 2015-2016 Honors Council lead by the Executive Committee of Michelle White (Chair), Adam Bess (Vice-Chair), Bram Blackwell (Treasurer), Sarah Anderson (Secretary), and Carmen Cronin (Social Media Representative).

HUMAN RIGHTS PHOTOGRAPHER: STEPHEN FERRY

Human Rights photographer Stephen Ferry gave a lecture and photo presentation to Honors students in March 2015. His presentation, “Fabrics of Culture Resistance,” examined the 40 year exile of Saharawi refugees.
During the Spring 2015 semester, the Honors Council put forth a new series called “Lecture and a Movie.” Once a month, a professor in the Honors Program would choose a topic and a related movie to lecture on for attending Honors students. The first Honors faculty member to present for this series was Dr. Pamela Gresham. In March, Dr. Gresham chose to lecture on “giftedness” and accompanied her topic with the film August Rush. She related the idea of giftedness and the young protagonist’s story to the gifts and expectations of Honors students. The next “Lecture and a Movie” was hosted by Dr. Matthew Brennan in April. Dr. Brennan decided to lecture on the short story “Killings” by Andre Dubus and chose to show its film adaptation, In the Bedroom. Both programs had great attendance from Honors students and inspired the council’s confidence to continue this series in the coming years.

5 flights. 4 vans. 3 states. 20 people. 1,100+ miles of driving. Countless memories. The 2015 President’s Scholars trip was an unforgettable adventure. It was a journey that started in Rapid City, South Dakota and ended in Butte, Montana, with numerous stops in between.

Our first stop was Badlands National Park. There had been a blizzard in the area the week before, so our hiking adventure involved snow up to our knees and a group snowball fight. A great way to start off the trip! The following day our four vehicle caravan made its way to Mount Rushmore and Devil's Tower where we took in the beautiful views and spent more time on hiking trails.

The next portion of our trip took us to two different Indian reservations. We visited both the Crow Agency and the Northern Cheyenne Nation. Both of these experiences were uniquely wonderful. We toured a tribal college on each reservation and were welcomed with open arms and warm smiles. At the Northern Cheyenne tribal college, staff taught us about tribal medicine and healing, demonstrated a traditional game, and fed us a wonderful lunch (complete with the famous Indian fry bread). We learned a lot and had a blast. Many thanks to our new friends at the Northern Cheyenne Nation tribal college!

Once again, our caravan loaded up and headed onward, this time to Yellowstone National Park. This portion of the trip led to some of the most breathtaking views and most memorable experiences. We had the opportunity to stay in the Old Faithful Inn where we could walk out the front door to see the geyser go off every 90 minutes. The old cabin feel and mountainous surroundings provided the perfect atmosphere for our experience. Yellowstone provided some of the highlights of this trip. The first of these was the morning spent with wolf... biologist, Rick McIntyre, where we learned all about the wolves of Yellowstone. Other highlights from Yellowstone involve the views, including a rainbow sighting and geothermal features.

Our trip concluded with a trip to Butte, Montana. Here we visited a mine, distillery, and hot springs resort. We learned about environmental concerns from the old mining processes, went down into a mine to experience life as a miner, and were taught about distilling processes. We could not be more thankful for John and Courtney's gracious hospitality. It was wonderful to learn from such hardworking and successful people.

It was a week full of laughs, learning, and bonding. I could not be more thankful for the opportunity to spend a week exploring new places with some of the best Sycamores out there. For this, the President's Scholar Class of 2015 extends their gratitude to President Bradley, First Lady Cheri, Dr. Bierly, Tracy Ford, and Rex Kendall. Thank you for spending a week with 15 goofy and energetic students and sharing this great experience with us.

Course Description: We can all recount stories in which teachers have played a part in our lives, but this course will give us the opportunity to read works of literature (some poems, some articles, excerpts from some essays, a brief play, a full-length play, a novel, a memoir/autobiography), and view portions of some films in which teachers, students, and school staff are represented. In analyzing the literature, we will, of course, discuss the artistic merits of the works, but we will also address the ways in which teachers, students, and school cultures are represented—and the effect these representations have on our perceptions of those who teach and the educational contexts in which they work. MWF 2:00-2:50; CRN: 53866
