April 3, 2020

Dear Indiana State University Students, Faculty and Staff,

I hope you and your families are well during these challenging times.

As you know, while we finish the spring 2020 semester with online-only instruction, Indiana State University is open and operational. Many faculty and staff members are working from home to provide services to our students and welcome future Sycamores.

Today, I am announcing that, with Governor Holcomb having extended his stay-at-home order, ISU advises supervisors to allow University employees to work from home through April 30. This applies to all staff other than those providing essential campus services — as determined by vice presidents and/or cabinet members.

During these past weeks, I have been so inspired by the unwavering commitment of our students, faculty, and staff to keep us moving forward. That commitment is not surprising, though. It is part of who we are at ISU.

Thank you for all that you are doing. Stay focused and finish the semester strong.

Sincerely,

Deborah J. Curtis, Ph.D.
President
