

The COVID-19 pandemic has introduced a new phrase to our vocabulary, “social distancing.” Many of us have experienced feelings of loneliness, isolation, and boredom during the months spent avoiding close physical proximity with those outside our homes. How can literature help us understand this experience? Choose two literary works that can help us explore the moral, ethical, or psychological effects of “social distancing.”